Q. The company I worked for discharged me while still owing me one day's pay. I also think they owe me money for the last day I reported to work. So far I haven't been able to talk to the manager. Will you help? I.B., Long Beach.

A. Yes. Mrs. E. W. McNeil, agent for the California Division of Industrial Welfare, says the law requires you be paid half your usual daily earnings for reporting to work. Webb Goodman, sales manager for the company, says he was unaware of the law, but he'll make out a check for your half day's pay. His bookkeeper's vacation delayed your other check, which Goodman says will be sent to you.

Q. An elderly friend of mine suffers from arthritis and is confined to her apartment most of the time. However, she knits hundreds of slippers and lap robes for veterans. Can you help her find some inexpensive yarn? Mrs. C.O., Norwalk.

A. Sure. A bundle of multicolored yarn is being donated by the Super Yarn Mart, 644 Pine Ave., Long Beach, thanks to an assist by manager Thelma Loughran. An ACTION LINE staffer will deliver it to your friend.

Q. Is there any inexpensive way I can find out my blood type? B.E., Long Beach.

A. Yes. The American Red Cross sends all the donated blood it receives to its laboratory for typing. Mrs. Loren McCannon, director of the Long Beach branch of the Red Cross, 319 W. Broadway, said persons who donate blood can ask for their type, which will be sent to them. Blood donations are accepted Monday and Tuesday from 3:30 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Q. One of my four daughters was in a traffic accident several weeks ago, and the hospital bills have drained my savings. Now the utility company has threatened to cut off service and I've little money for food. Is there some agency which could help me? Mrs. H.J.D., Long Beach.

A. The Volunteers of America are ready to help. Virginia Beaton, welfare officer at the office at 1185 E. 15th St., Long Beach, asks you to visit her any afternoon from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. She says the agency will help you with the utility payments. You can call her at 599-2404 or 437-4197.

Q. I paid in full for merchandise ordered from Bullock's, yet they keep billing me. I've written trying to straighten things out, but the bills keep coming. Can you help me? Mrs. F.C., Long Beach.

A. Yes. J. L. Williams, credit manager for Bullock's, told ACTION LINE the flood of unwanted bills resulted from a bookkeeping error. They're sorry for the mixup and will make sure your account is straightened out.

Q. Where can my 14-year-old son find work at a charity organization or hospital this summer? Mrs. E.M.S., Lakewood.

A. He can serve the United Way by contacting Clara Andrews, executive director, at 426-7171. United Way teen helpers assist in mailing literature and doing other clerical work. Beachcombers, 1208 Mahanna Ave., needs athletically inclined youths to help physically handicapped patients learn to swim and bowl. Contact Margaret Cook at 599-1817. Hospital work assisting elderly patients is available at El Cerrito Hospital, 1401 Chestnut Ave., Long Beach. Call HE 7-8881 and ask for volunteer director Betty Willich. You might also try Lois Buffington, director of volunteers at Long Beach General Hospital, 2597 Redondo Ave., 427-9951.

Q. What can a person do to get his driver's license back after it was revoked for drunken driving? Mrs. L.E.T., Long Beach.

A. After the one-year period is over you can obtain a license by filing proof of "ability to respond to damages" with the Department of Motor Vehicles, according to sections 13352 and 16430 of the California Vehicle Code. A certificate of insurance will fulfill this requirement.

SOUND OFF!

I have to sound off about the so-called pacifists who are condemning the Vietnam war and dividing the nation by sending food and guns to the Viet Cong. How would these cowards feel if this war were on our own back porch? It could happen, you know, if the United States were to pull out and leave the South Vietnamese to the Communists who are determined to take over the world. If the protesters are so unhappy about this country's actions, why don't they live somewhere else? I wasn't so glad to leave my home to fight in World War II, but soon realized that if I didn't, I wouldn't have any home to come back to. F.S.N., Long Beach.

REACTION

Could I have one more say in this Vietnam argument? I'd like to respond to the Mame's mother who disliked my letter about the unpopular war in Asia. Of course no war is popular in the sense that people are happy about it. I wasn't happy to spend four years in the Army in the Second World War, nor were others, but our country had been clobbered and we were fighting enemies out to destroy us. In Vietnam, we're fighting poor peasants in black pajamas who never did us any harm. The situation over there should be left to those who will be living over there. Many great men in this country, and much of the world, agree that the Vietnam adventure is unnecessary, cruel and just plain wrong. I'm sure this mother is proud of her son, and I wish him good luck. All those crooks and phonies in Saigon aren't worth the little finger of one American boy. J.S., Long Beach.

Another Tax Hike Sought

Reagan Asks Boost of $111 Million; $1.05 Billion Total

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan Friday asked the legislature to add $111 million to his tax increase program, boosting the measure to $1.057 billion—four times the largest revenue package ever proposed by a California governor.

The hikes were needed to meet a new fiscal crisis caused by revised revenue estimates which showed state income lagging $98 million below expectations.

Reagan asked for a new state tax on real estate sales, increases in the levies on inheritances and insurance companies, and an extension of the sales tax to repair services and gas and electric utility bills paid by other than residential customers.

IN ADDITION, the governor said legislation—already passed by the Assembly and pending in the Senate—to legalize night harness racing and extend thoroughbred racing days, would put $10 million into the treasury because of an increase in the base on which the state horseracing tax is collected. He endorsed the bill as a revenue measure.

The governor's new tax plan will be added next week to his original $946 million tax bill, sponsored in the legislature by Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach.

The Deukmejian bill currently is stalled in the Senate Government Efficiency and Economy Committee, which has not yet scheduled it for a hearing.

THE GOVERNOR called for legislation to permit the state to begin collecting the real estate transfer tax of 10 cents per $100 when the federal tax expires Jan. 1, 1968. The measure would raise $5 million in revenue during the fiscal year beginning July 1 and $15 million a year thereafter.

Assemblyman Kent Stacey, R-Bakersfield, introduced legislation earlier in the session to pick up the real estate tax, but Reagan had not given it his support previously.

Reagan called for a reduction of the inheritance tax exemption from $4,000 to $3,000. That would raise $1 million.

He proposed an increase in the insurance tax rate from 2.35 per cent to 2.60 per cent. That would raise $15 million a year.

THE GOVERNOR asked that the sales tax, now 4 cents on the dollar, be extended to repair service on autos, television sets and similar items. That would raise $35 million.

Reagan's executive secretary, Philip M. Battaglia, noted that under present law, parts used in repairs are taxed but labor is not. The governor's plan would extend the tax to the entire repair bill.

In addition, the governor asked to extend the sales tax to the gas and electricity bills of business and commercial users. But he said residential users should be exempted. That would raise $45 million.

The state collects 3 cents of the sales tax. The other 1 cent goes to counties and cities. Therefore, the sales tax extension would also increase city and county revenue.

REAGAN'S original $946 million tax package would virtually double the income tax, add one cent per dollar to the sales tax and boost the bank and corporation and distilled liquor taxes.

JUST 'HIPPIE HOAX' 'Mellow Yellow' Won't Do Trick

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Banana pushers got the word Friday that "mellow yellow won't turn you on." The hippies said it was a real hang up.

The government said it had tested various "inside" recipes for smoking dried banana peels but found none of them produced the hallucinogenic effects as claimed.

Of course the tests were not carried out by one person, or even several persons, but rather by a "banana smoking machine."

IN AN ANNOUNCEMENT, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said the machine "smoked dried banana peels for more than three weeks and never did get high." It didn't even blow a fuse.

Referred to as "poor man's pot" or "mellow yellow," banana peel smoking started several months ago when advocates said it would produce hallucinations similar to marijuana.

The long silvers from the banana peel are put in an oven and baked until they turned light brown. Then they are rolled into cigarettes or packed in pipes ready for smoking.

Some users said it "blew their minds," and that's really being way out.

But after three weeks of intensive testing, the FDA put the banana boom on the skids. It said it was nothing but a "hippie hoax."

Sex Study Need Cited by Student

"Compulsory." That's what one ninth-grade girl in Anaheim says about sex education courses.

"Why should we hide from the one factor (sex) that is one of the biggest influences on our lives?" she adds.

She concluded her questionnaire: "If sex and family life were made a compulsory subject in high schools everywhere, I am sure it would prove to be helpful and well worth the time.

The Anaheim Union High School District, some observers say, has one of the outstanding sex-education programs in the nation. What do the kids themselves—and their parents—think of such goings-on?

Let's take a look:

The ninth graders have their say first.

Boy: "One problem is eloping. This course will tell how to prevent it."

Girl: "Most students' parents are actually too embarrassed to tell their children about sex and the facts of life. So most children find out what they want to know from their friends or from things written on walls. This, I believe, is the wrong way to have to find out facts that you want to know."

Girl: "The course in Family Life is especially necessary for those students who are afraid of embarrassment."

Girl: "We could find how other people felt about a subject that is not often openly discussed."

To 'Destroy Israel' if Fighting Starts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt declared Friday if war comes his country is poised for "total war" to destroy Israel. The Soviet Union meanwhile called on the United States and other Western powers to restrain Israel from a thrust against the Arabs.

The day's developments in the Middle East crisis saw Nasser reaffirm his tough stand in a speech broadcast by Cairo Radio and a Soviet statement that indicated the Soviet government might be interested in an effort to relax tensions.

As for Nasser's announced blockade of the Tiran Strait, a West German freighter captain said he sailed through the strait into the Gulf of Aqaba Friday and saw no sign of any Egyptian blockade.

NASSER SAID, "We knew that by closing the Gulf of Aqaba it might mean war with Israel," but he said, "we will not back down on our rights in the gulf." Three Arab nations, Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, and Israel have outlets on that enclosed water way.

Nasser said that if war breaks out "it will be total war and the objective will be to destroy Israel."

The Soviet Union, which has offered support to Egypt, again blamed Israel for the trouble in the Middle East but took no open stand on Egypt's announced blockade of Israeli shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba.

A Soviet spokesman called a rare news conference and said France's proposal for a Big Four peace effort "is being considered" in the Kremlin. The effort would bring together the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union.

SOVIET VIEWS on the Middle East came after an Egyptian newspaper with close ties to Nasser contended that Egypt had achieved its objectives against the Israelis and that war would come only if Israel starts it.

Nasser then made his radio broadcast to say Egypt would not back down.

Israel has said it will fight to keep the gulf open and Israel's Foreign Minister Abba Eban was in Washington to seek U.S. backing against Egypt's avowed blockade of the narrow strait that controls the gulf.

In Washington, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said the situation "remains very tense but we are hopeful that good sense will prevail."

THE UNITED STATES and others looked forward to Secretary-General U. Thant's report to the U.N. Security Council on his peace mission to Cairo.

ISRAEL MEET

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Israeli foreign minister Abba Eban conferred Friday night about the explosive state of the Middle East but there was no immediate indication whether they had reached any decisions on policies or possible courses of action to head off an Israeli-Arab war.

The White House merely announced Eban's arrival and departure.

Eban left Washington for Israel immediately after the meeting "to report to my prime minister." Asked if he were optimistic, Eban replied tersely, "I am realistic."

Thant worked on the report and diplomatic sources expected it to be ready today.

In the Gaza Strip, evacuated last week by the U.N. Emergency Force that had been interposed between Egypt and Israel since 1956, AP Correspondent Garvin Hudgins reported it was quiet. Egyptian troops were dug in and heavy guns were trained across no-man's-land to the Israeli lines a few miles away.

The United States has sought a solution through the United Nations, and in Ottawa Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson told the Canadian Parliament he and President Johnson agreed in their conference outside Ottawa Thursday that there is the need for a "United Nations presence" along both sides of the Israeli-Egyptian border. Pearson added that he and Johnson also were in "complete agreement" that the Gulf of Aqaba should remain open to all peaceful shipping.

IN TEL AVIV, an Israeli Foreign Ministry official told newsmen that an Egyptian blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba would be intolerable because it would strangle Israel's trade to the Far East, particularly Japan. The closure of Elath, he added, would have a detrimental effect on Israel's

233 Reds Die in Fierce Battles

Combined News Services

SAIGON — U.S. troops Friday killed 233 Viet Cong in savage South Vietnam fighting and American jets destroyed as many as nine Communist MIG interceptors in raids against North Vietnam airfields and electrical power plants, military spokesmen said. U.S. Army troops rallied against an ambush by half-naked Communists in the Central Highlands, Marines routed guerrillas from coastal rice paddies in one of the most successful recent days of anti-Viet Cong patrolling. In all, 233 enemy died in the fierce battles. Waves of U.S. Navy fighter-bombers destroyed three and possibly nine MIGs caught on the ground at Kep Airfield, 37 miles northeast of Hanoi. The planes also smashed the key Haiphong power plant 1.1 miles from the port's center. Pilots also reported hitting vital rail links between Communist China and the Hanoi-Haiphong war machine area.

About 2,000 Marines attacked Hill 117 in an attempt to dislodge the North Vietnamese troops from the strategic high ground in the Demilitarized Zone. South of Da Nang, a battalion of Marines — about 1,000 men — were in heavy contact with about 1,000 Communist soldiers in a battle that developed before dawn. In Budapest, 1,000 youths smashed most of the windows of the U.S. Embassy; they shouted slogans against American "aggression in Vietnam" and burned an effigy of President Johnson. In Washington the Pentagon announced a U.S. Navy plane may have crossed inadvertently into Red China while returning from a North Vietnam target. Also in Washington Marine commandant Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr. heatedly told a news conference that Lt. Gen. Lewis Walt had been "my right hand" and rejected reports that Walt is returning from Vietnam to Pentagon duty "under a cloud." Greene also said the controversial M16 rifle used by Marines in Vietnam "is superior in design to any we have ever had, but you do have to take particular care of it." A House committee will make on-the-spot investigations of the rifle's performance starting June 1.

Strike Paralyzes Sydney

SYDNEY, Australia — Sydney was paralyzed by a surprise strike of 400 electric train operators Friday which stranded more than 300,000 shoppers and workers. Police put 1,500 men on traffic duty to fight what they described as "the worst traffic snarl in the city's history." The strike began when two operators were suspended for refusing to work on a platform they said was unsafe.

Food Riots Break Out

BOMBAY, India — Food riots broke out this weekend in the city of Jabalpur and police reported they shot and killed two persons in a mob looting a market. Police also opened fire on a mob that set fire to a bank. Unofficial reports said eight persons were wounded.

NATO's Defense Leaky

DILLINGEN, Germany — The U.S. Air Force thought a defecting Soviet MIG-17 which flew deep into West Germany was an off-course allied aircraft and did not scramble any interceptors, it was learned Friday. An informed military source said, "There was no scramble by American planes, no interception, nothing! All hell has broken loose with three-star generals fighting like cats and dogs. Army intelligence is in a turmoil." The MIG-17 was piloted by a 25-year old Soviet Air Force 1st lieutenant, identified as Vasily Ilyich Epatko. He landed Thursday in a meadow at Kickingen, Bavaria, more than 100 miles inside West Germany. He asked for asylum was turned over to U.S. jurisdiction Friday. It was not until five hours after he landed that U.S. authorities were informed a Soviet plane had landed deep inside NATO's defenses.

Hong Kong Strikes

HONG KONG — This British colony experienced more leftist-inspired sympathy strikes Friday but there was no violence or public disorder.

Auto Industry Standards Eased

WASHINGTON — The government and the auto industry reached a compromise Friday in their dispute over a safety standard for car interiors. The two sides now will negotiate modifications of the standard to meet some of the industry complaints. Federal Highway Administrator Lowell K. Bridwell said that both the time element and common sense dictated the government's position. The standard will apply to 1968 model cars. "It would be less than realistic on our part not to recognize that some modification is necessary," Bridwell said. According to Bridwell, the compromise will "short circuit the time problem" and allow the standard to be enforced on 1968 cars. Safety critic Ralph Nader saw the government decision as a surrender to the auto industry.

Dodd Rights Probe

WASHINGTON — The American Civil Liberties Union is looking into the procedures followed by the Senate ethics committee in its investigation of misconduct charges against Sen. Thomas J. Dodd. Lawrence Speiser, director of the organization's Washington office, confirmed that "we are looking to see if any civil liberties issues are involved" — referring specifically to whether the Connecticut Democrat was accorded due process of law. Speiser said the novelist John Dos Passos and columnist William F. Buckley Jr. had sent a telegram requesting the study.

Broker Fees Challenged

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court was asked Friday to clear the way for a major antitrust challenge of the New York Stock Exchange's brokerage commission system. A lawsuit filed in behalf of shareholders in five mutual funds was brought to the high court after it was dismissed by federal courts in Chicago.

4 Deaths in Storm

CHICAGO — An orphaned storm born in the North Atlantic ocean continued to wander over New England Friday bringing ferocious rain, sleet, snow and battering tidal waves. At least four deaths were attributed to the storm. (Story Page A-4.)

College Presses Halt

PORTLAND, Ore. — The Portland State College administration has halted publication of the school's newspaper, the Vanguard. Dr. Branford P. Millar, president of PSC, ordered the suspension of the newspaper because "of its failure to live up to the responsible canons of journalism." The suspension came after the vanguard published photographs of poet Allen Ginsberg, naked from the groin up, and a girl in tight bangles into a garbage can. There was an attempt Friday to organize a faculty meeting at the college to protest the suspension. In Florida, some 1,700 copies of the Tampa University yearbook were handed out Thursday and students, angered at seeing the editor's picture 24 times, built a bonfire and began tossing them in. (Orange Coast College halls yearbook, Page A-6.)

Draft Bill Negotiation

WASHINGTON — House backers of guaranteed draft deferments for students said Friday they thought key senators would go along with nailing the provision into the draft law. "We're hopeful," said Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La. "Sen. Russell is a very reasonable man." Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and will head the Senate team that will negotiate early next month with House members on the draft bill.

The Exodus Starts

CHICAGO — The nation's city-dwellers started their first big exodus of the warm-weather season and thousands of country residents headed for Memorial Day weekend holidays in metropolitan centers. Around the nation, state and city traffic control officials geared to cope with a flood of motorists on streets and highways. Gov. Claude Kirk personally led the safe-driving campaign in Florida, where motorists were urged to keep car lights on during daylight and the highway patrol was ordered to stop drivers who did not comply.

Sorrow Shadows the Mortar Boards

Combined News Services

Juda (Wis.) High School graduated its living and its dead Friday night.

In ceremonies subdued by sorrow, the school presented the diplomas to the 26 survivors of the class of '67 and the families of nine girls who died on a class trip.

"Tonight there is a part of us missing," said Dan Leaver, football quarterback and class valedictorian. "For a short time we were blessed by the presence of nine wonderful girls. We can learn from each of them. Don't shy away from their memory. Cherish their memory in your hearts."

The 19 boys and 7 girls left in the class walked forward to receive their diplomas. Then the school board president, Robert Newman, summoned the families of the nine victims from the crowd.

Farmer Kenneth Babler made the 20-second walk from his tenth row seat to the stage in complete stillness to receive a blue carnation, a blue and silver tassel and the diploma of their daughter, Sheila. The nine girls died March 30 when a jet airliner on a training flight crashed behind the motel where they were staying in a New Orleans suburb on their senior trip and spewed flaming fuel into their rooms.

HIPPIES, NO!

The hippies have worn out their welcome in Mexico.

Mexican consulates throughout the U.S. have just received official instructions to discourage the hippies from journeying south of the border.

"How we do it depends on each individual consulate," San Francisco Consul General Adolfo G. Domínguez said Friday. "We have instructions to use our judgement as to who enters Mexico and who doesn't."

"We do not want undesirable as tourists."

And, he noted, "Mexico is getting a few hippies of its own. We don't think they should be encouraged."

MOONSHINE

Federal officers announced the arrest of seven persons and launched a search for the sheriff of McCurtain County, Okla., Friday on charges of moonshining. Eight persons, including Sheriff Gene Thorp and an agent of the Oklahoma Alcohol Beverage Control Board were indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury at Muskogee.

RECOUNT

James P. Hoffa, upset in his bid for a seat in the Michigan legislature earlier this week by a George Romney-backed Republican, filed for a recount Friday.

LOOK, DOC

The Indiana University professor who developed the "Look, Mom, no cavities" fluoride toothpaste ad received the Navy's highest civilian honor Friday—the Distinguished Public Service Award. Dr. Joseph C. Muhler was presented the award for his role in shifting emphasis of the Navy's dental program from correction to prevention through use of fluoride. "He turned the Navy treatment program upside down," said Rear Adm. Frank M. Kyes.

BOWING OUT?

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Friday, he might retire from politics when his term expires in 1970.

Asked if he would seek a fourth term as governor, he replied: "I've been in politics 25 years, first in Washington, then in New York. I think it's time to retire but only circumstances can decide this, even though I personally believe I've had enough."

EXAMINATION

A psychiatric examination has been ordered for Louise Thoresen, who keeps getting arrested with machine guns.

A U.S. district judge ordered the examination on joint motion of the U.S. district attorney and her San Francisco attorney. Her millionaire husband, William Thorsen II, 30, accused of illegally possessing 70 tons of arms and ammunition, has already passed a court-ordered psychiatric examination.

DELAYED

A Chicago judge agreed Friday to delay the sentencing of Richard Speck, the convicted murderer of eight young nurses, pending new brain wave tests to determine whether he suffers from uncontrollable epileptic frenzies. The decision came after a University of Illinois neurology specialist testified that previous brain wave tests given Speck were incomplete but showed "suspicious features."

SCORN

Svetlana, once hailed as a princess in the Kremlin while her father Joseph Stalin was premier, was held up to scorn Friday as "Defector Alliluyeva."

Dubbing her thus was Mikhail Sholokhov, the Nobel Prize winning novelist. He berated advocates of literary freedom in a speech at the fourth National Congress of the Soviet Union of Writers.

His speech, reported in the Communist newspaper Pravda, was the first official information in the Soviet Union about the decision of Stalin's daughter to seek asylum in the U.S. There had been one item of news up to now. On March 13, after her defection to the West was known, Soviet news media announced that Mrs. Alliluyeva (Stalin's daughter uses her mother's maiden name) had gone to India and "how long she stays abroad is her private affair."

An editorial in today's Pravda, refers to the Soviet citizen "S. Alliluyeva, who was first taken by CIA-agents from India to Switzerland and recently to the U.S." There, Pravda said, she is being used for the "unseemly purpose" of anti-Soviet propaganda.

SHORTEST

A curriculum assistant said Friday a miniskirt worn by Concord, Calif., high school English teacher Mrs. Nancy McGlone on St. Patrick's Day was "the shortest dress I've ever seen on a teacher."

"I was dumbfounded," James Westbrook told state hearing officer Paul Winston. "If a student had come to school with a dress that short, she would have been referred to the dean of girls."

Mrs. McGlone, 32, is seeking to keep her job at the school. Attorney Francis Heisler, representing the shapely teacher, ac-

Kuchel: 'I'll Try to Be a Good Boy'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — U.S. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., conceded Friday he's "been a little too independent for some people" and promised "I'll try to be a good boy."

The Senate's assistant GOP leader made the half-joking reference to his past disagreements with some Republicans in his home state after a meeting with Gov. Reagan.

"What I need are more friends and less enemies," he said at a news conference.

Kuchel also said he won't mind if Reagan doesn't put him on a favorite son presidential delegation to the Republican National Convention next year.

"I HAVE NO desire or ambition to be part of a delegation next year," he said.

Kuchel, an expected candidate for another term in 1968, has had an up-and-down relationship with the new governor.

Reagan was miffed at Kuchel's refusal to endorse him for governor last year. But lately they appear to have patched up their differences. The public relations firm that ran Reagan's campaign is doing preliminary political work for Kuchel.

REAGAN HAS said he wouldn't name Kuchel to the delegation that will go to the GOP national convention.

Hike in Medi-Cal Fees Advances in Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly Public Health Committee Friday approved legislation requiring the Medi-Cal program to pay dentists, druggists, optometrists and other medical specialists their "usual and accustomed" fee for treating welfare patients.

Tuition Bill Tabled by Committee

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A bill declaring "legislative intent" to charge tuition at the University of California and state colleges was tabled for this year Friday by the Senate Education Committee.

The measure sponsored by Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale, would establish a student aid and loan program to help with tuition fees. The committee sent the bill to a between-sessions study.

The legislature has the power to establish tuition at California's 10 state college campuses. But only the UC Board of Regents can decide on tuition at the university.

Harmer's bill would provide a formula for tuition charges, including costs of instruction.

Meek Pawnbroker Shot Dead by Pair

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man described by police as "so meek he wouldn't hurt a fly" was shot to death Friday, apparently during an armed robbery.

The victim was Joshua Kwiat, 45, a pawnbroker. Police said he was shot once in the abdomen, and that the bullet struck with such force he was knocked from his Crenshaw Loan and Jewelry Co. showroom to an adjoining chamber.

"I've known him for 15 years," said Sgt. Robert Pignet. "He was so meek he wouldn't hurt a fly. They must have been two vicious killers. I know the man would not put up a struggle."

No witnesses saw the killing, police reported. But they said they have descriptions of two men who were seen fleeing the scene.

Officers said Kwiat's wife would be asked to inventory the shop to determine whether anything was stolen.

Sen. McAteer Dies at 51

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — State Sen. J. Eugene McAteer, 51, D-San Francisco, died Friday of an apparent heart attack. He was stricken while playing handball at the Olympic Club.

McAteer had announced as a candidate in the San Francisco race for mayor, opposing Mayor John F. Shelley.

McATEER, a vigorous former athlete, was one of California's most powerful senators and was considered a rising figure in state politics. Political observers had said that a victory in the race of mayor could have made him a possibility for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1970.

His death reduces the Democratic margin in the Senate to 20-19. His seat would be filled in a special election.

HE WAS THE second legislator to die this session. A heart attack claimed Assemblyman Charles E. Chapel, R-Palos Verdes Estate, early in the year.

Watts CAP Grant Said Dangerous

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A quarter million dollar federal grant to the self-created Community Alert Patrol in the Watts area was denounced as "divisive and extremely dangerous" by police officials Friday.

"The proposal usurps a police function by the creation of a vigilante-type group that is not responsible to the citizens of this community," the police commission said in a statement.

THE PATROL was formed after the Watts riot in 1965 by Negroes to monitor police calls and to observe police arrest methods for any signs of police brutality.

The commissioners said they were "greatly disturbed and extremely concerned" over the money given CPA by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"The prospect of untrained youths working outside constituted authority, with the implied sanction of the U.S. government, is divisive and extremely dangerous," the commission said.

POLICE CHIEF Thomas Reddin joined commissioners in expressing alarm at such a "private police patrol on the streets of Los Angeles."

Reddin said preliminary reports indicated the patrol interfered with official police operations and generally tended to encourage citizens to "violate the law."

Extermination Threat Main Topic of Negro Conference

United Press International
A conference of Negroes in south Los Angeles this weekend will discuss means of combating possible extermination of Negroes in the United States, the meeting coordinator said Friday.

Coordinator Wilfred T. Ussery, National Chairman of Congress of Racial Equality, said black people must face up to the question of extermination.

"There is a clear and present danger," he said, "that the black people in this country may be exterminated. If the 6 million Jews in Germany had called for help before World War II they may have been saved from extermination by Hitler. They are killing black people every day of the week in this country. We want to get answers."

Ussery said the black people are "calling for help." He added, however, "we're not asking white people for anything."

He said the conference will include discussions with African representatives about "self defense efforts by black people."

Among those due to attend was Ambassador Nabwera, who represents Kenya at the United Nations.

There will be no spot news coverage permitted but periodic news conferences will be held starting about noon today, Edith Austin, press liaison officer, said.

Panel discussions will start at 9 a.m. today and continue through Sunday. Two plays written especially for the conference by Leroy Jones will be staged tonight beginning at 10.

Real fact is that never in his two decades of rule over Egypt had Nasser been so powerful in prestige—up until this week. Now he has electrified the Arab world and is riding so high that it's impossible for his bitter enemies, King Faisal of Saudi Arabia and King Hussein of Jordan, to refuse him support.

If he comes out on top of this winner-take-all gamble, he will be the first man in a thousand years able to dictate to the Arab world. If he loses, he will have lost much, because at the rate things were going in Egypt, he would have been

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Gets 'Loan' at Gunpoint

A stocky man with a gun in his belt robbed the Seaboard Finance Co., 12091 Brookhurst St., Garden Grove, of an undetermined amount of money shortly before 1 p.m. Friday. The man escaped on foot in the crowded shopping center.

Assistant manager Ronald E. Jones told officers the man walked in, inquired about a loan and was directed to one of the interview rooms where Jones approached him a few minutes later.

Jones questioned the man about security and said the bandit, who wore Levis and a gray jacket, revealed the gun and said, "you're gonna give me a loan anyway."

The man then ordered Jones and four other employees to the front counter and demanded "all the money." There were no customers in the store.

Money, believed "less than $500," was taken from the cash drawer of Mrs. A. B. Bassett. A second cash drawer was locked, and the employee with the key had gone to lunch. The floor safe was open, but empty.

The bandit asked when the absent clerk would return and was advised, "20 minutes . . . if you care to wait." He replied, "I don't think so," and left after warning everyone not to follow.

4th Nuclear Ship Joins U.S. Fleet

By BUCK LANIER
Navy Editor

CAMDEN, N.J. — The nation's fourth nuclear-powered surface warship will join the fleet today.

The USS Truxtun, fifth ship of the line to bear the name of Commodore William Truxtun, will be based in Long Beach. Three of the nation's 4 nuclear warships are Long Beach-based. Ceremonies get under way at 2:30 p.m. at the New York Shipbuilding Corp. which oddly enough is closing up shop on May 31.

On hand from Long Beach are Harry Fulton, special assistant to City Manager John Mansell and John Wells, city legislative representative.

TRUXTUN WILL be assigned to Cruiser - Destroyer Flotilla 3 under Rear Adm. Walter V. Combs Jr. after arrival in Long Beach this summer. The ship is powered by two reactors and is capable of speeds "well in excess of 32 knots."

Primary mission is to operate offensively, independently or in company with strike, anti-submarine or amphibious forces against air, submarine and surface threats.

Commanding officer will be Capt. David D. Work, a 24-year veteran who maintains a home in San Diego at present.

About 10 former sailors from earlier Truxtons will be special guests at the commissioning and reception.

Oh Woe, No Oboe

A thief stole a $600 oboe from a Willson High School locker, Long Beach police said Friday. The instrument belonged to Alan Hyde, 5431 El Jardin St.

Set Trial in Bar Slayings

Two Alhambra men charged with slaying two customers during a robbery Feb. 16 of the Gaslight Bar in Stanton were ordered Friday to face a jury trial in Santa Ana Superior Court Aug. 21.

Wayne Lee McFarland, 21, and William W. McClellan, 26, pleaded innocent to both counts of murder when queried by Superior Court Judge Howard C. Cameron.

Both suspects have been closely guarded since their arrest March 26 in El Monte when they indicated "we have nothing to lose by trying to escape."

Tom Keenan, attorney for McClellan, said he would seek a dismissal of the charges in a hearing June 7. McFarland's attorney, George Chula, said he would not join in the hearing "because what's the use."

The two suspects are charged with killing James Seagriss, 40, of Stanton, and Joe Gray, 33, of Huntington Beach.

New Hospital Management

A newly organized group, Briar Medical Enterprises Inc., has assumed ownership and management of St. Helens Hospital in Bellflower, the first of four hospitals built in the city after World War II.

President of the corporation is William H. Cruse who will continue as hospital administrator. Brock H. Payne, secretary-treasurer, will be assistant administrator and Joe Summer, CPA, controller.

The change in ownership means there will not be a doctor on the hospital's Board of Management, Cruse said. Cruse said 52-bed the hospital at 8542 E. Artesia Blvd. will be renamed Bellflower Community Hospital.

Kirschke to Appear on TV

Suspended Los Angeles Deputy Dist. Atty. Jack Kirschke, released from jail after three days incarceration, still expects to be prosecuted for murder in the slayings of his wife and her flight instructor in the Kirschkes' Naples apartment.

Kirschke will appear at 2 p.m. today on Channel 2's "Viewpoint" program. On the program, he predicts he will be rearrested shortly.

New State College Bid

Sen. Ralph C. Dills, D-Gardena-Long Beach, Friday authorized a Senate resolution calling for the establishment of another state college in the southwest section of Los Angeles County.

Dills said in his resolution that the area bounded by Imperial Boulevard, the Harbor Freeway and the Pacific—is expanding rapidly and stands in dire need of advanced educational facilities.

The area described by Dills is roughly the same as that which was encompassed by the California State College, Palos Verdes, which was enmeshed in controversy and subsequently relocated as California State College, Dominguez Hills. Dills' resolution did not specify any newly discovered sites that might be sufficient for such a campus.

Psychedelic Yearbook

The Orange Coast College yearbook—The Log—was withdrawn from circulation this week after school officials noticed the cover—a guitar-playing youth in the foreground, a statue of a nude woman in the background—and a four-page article on psychedelic behavior inside the publication.

DRENCHING CHAMPAGNE SHOWER

Mrs. Albert C. Meyer creates a spray of champagne after she christens WODECO VI, one of the world's largest offshore drilling rigs. Mrs. Meyer, wife of the president of Pike Corporation of America, officiated at ceremonies Friday afternoon at Pier D in Port of Long Beach. The 4,430-ton vessel will be used to probe a new offshore oilfield off the coast of Santa Barbara. Other officials attending the ceremonies were Ross A. McClintock, president of Offshore Drilling and Exploration Co. (left) and Henry Ackema, vice president of WODECO.

—Staff Photo

About 400 copies of the 3,000-book edition were already in circulation when Norman E. Watson, college president, noticed the material. He said it was "a grave mistake."

Errol Gersen, editor of the book, said the four-page article was an attempt at satire. But officials ordered the book revised, with sports and campus activities to replace the questionable article. The cover was also ordered revised. Total cost of the revisions was fixed at $800.

FIVE WHO DIED

... five who died in Vietnam but still survive in the hearts of those they left behind. Bill Duncan, prize-winning reporter, visited their Long Beach area survivors and records their feelings (parents talking about the sons they loved) in a five-part series starting this Sunday.

The mother had a premonition. It was a feeling that was hard to put into words. She felt that something had happened to her son but didn't know what. She tried to put the feeling in words of a letter she sent him. The letter came too late. He had already been killed in action in Vietnam.

He had served with the Marines before and he didn't need to get involved in Vietnam. But he did get involved. He re-enlisted. From Vietnam, he wrote his mother: "I'm here because I want to be." He's back home now in a cemetery near his mother's home.

He was proud that he was a Mexican. This his parents knew. He wanted them to know something else. If he were to die, it should be as a citizen of the country for which he was fighting. He became a citizen. He died in Vietnam trying to save the life of another.

And so the tragedies unfold . . . real-life dramas in memoriam for five where thousands have died. Please try and take time over a mad-whirl Memorial Day weekend to remember. Read "Five Who Died".

Susan Hayward Uneasy in 'Vulgar' Movie

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Susan Hayward, furiously, "Get out my way! I've got a man waiting for me!" Patty Duke, nastily: "That's a switch, from the fags you're usually stuck with!"

Patty yanks off Susan's hair: "My God! It's a wig!" and rushes with it to a toilet. Susan: "My God! She's thrown it down the can (Patty: "How do you like that? You can't even flush it down the john!"

Such is the movie's new realism — exemplified in this acting for "Valley of the Dolls" — and Miss Hayward doesn't necessarily like it.

"It's the way crummy people talk," she justified after the hectic scene. Is that all to the good? "Not necessarily. Personally, I like to see a nice picture. But, then, I'm old-fashioned.

"If you take these lines out of context, they're pretty vulgar. But it's the kind of vulgarity 99 per cent of us use when we're prodded beyond being ladies and gentlemen."

"Still, I think Hollywood more and more is not too healthy an influence. So sue me."

"I liked motion pictures better when you walked out with an uplift. Some said 'Sound of Music' was corny. I loved it. The backbone of America still likes decency, and so do I." At 47

Miss Hayward still looks great — svelte, brittle, cool, a redhead whose cover picture on the Saturday Evening Post got her into movies at 20.

Her role as a tough show-biz veteran, into which she stepped after Judy Garland withdrew for what the studio called personal reasons, is her first in Hollywood in four years. In late '65 she made a film with Rex Harrison in Rome.

Will Hollywood be seeing more of her on its sound stages?

"I don't think so. Once in a great while, maybe. I have no plans except to get back to Ft. Lauderdale as soon as possible."

Divorced from Jess Barker, by whom she has twin, 22-year-old sons, one of whom is about to enter the army, she was widowed last year by the death of Eaton Chalkley, Georgia lawyer and former FBI agent.

Moored in a canal behind her Florida home are her 38-foot sport-fishing boat, 55-foot shrimp boat and 18-foot Boston whaler.

With friends she sails to the Bahamas. She caught a 69-pound kingfish and is "shootin' for a white marlin."

Does she — like the Helen Lawson character she's playing — have feelings against rising younger actresses?

"You have your day and then it's somebody else's day," Susan reasoned. "Why try to hang on? I'm not trying to hang on. I thought this part might be interesting, something different."

"The score never interests me, only the game."

"It's not the men in my life that count — it's the life in them."

"Gentlemen may prefer blondes, but who says blondes prefer gentlemen?"

In addition to 98 pages of Mae West's observations sex, men, men, sex and men, there are 46 full-page

BOOK REVIEWS

Seven Literary Gems From Argentina

ALL GREEN SHALL PERISH AND OTHER NOVELLAS AND STORIES. By Eduardo Mallea. Knopf, $7.95.

The three novellas and the four shorter tales in "All Green Shall Perish" happily expand our acquaintance with one of Argentina's most distinguished writers.

Not since 1944, when

Knopf published his "Bay of Silence," have American readers had a chance to read a work by Mallea, and it has been far too long.

"All Green Shall Perish" is a book of gems, but this reviewer's favorite is the novella, "Fiesta in November." It is a beautiful but a grim tale, set in the house of a very rich family. It all takes place in a single night, while a reception is being held. The family is rent by tension and discord, which the story bares beneath the impeccability of the occasion. The husband, a powerful financier, pitying himself because he thinks he is sensitive and a slave to his wife's ambitions, but in actuality more ambitious than she is; the two daughters, the younger of suicidal bent and the elder aware of the emptiness of her life; these are powerfully drawn characters.

A young man attends the reception; he, like the elder daughter, has an awareness of impending danger, and he is in revolt against the world represented in this mansion.

There is a story within the story, yet of the story. It is about an incident which is indicative of the evil the girl and the youth fear. A band of fascists kidnap a young man from his home at night and murder him. The youth tells the girl of such an incident, which he has witnessed, and the girl, who has gone to the youth's house, hears the murdered man's wife, driven mad, screaming as she runs through the streets. It must be remembered the Mallea wrote "Fiesta in November" in the 1930s when the Nazis were in full power and the fascists were triumphing in Spain; he was foreseeing the advent of Peronism in his own country.

"All Green Shall Perish," another novella in this collection, is considered Mallea's greatest work, and even in translation one clearly sees why. All the stories are of surpassing excellence, high marks in Mallea's writing of over three decades.

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

If past and present existed together in Cadillac's Eldorado assembly building a spectacular sight would result.

The gleaming colors of Eldorados on the assembly line would reflect a brilliant glare of fire from giant foundry furnaces. The smell of new cars would mingle with the odor of melting metal.

"For nearly 40 years the building was the center of Cadillac's foundry operations," explained Calvin J. Werner, general manager of Cadillac Motor Car Division and vice president of General Motors. "Today, 10 Eldorados an hour are built where almost 400 tons of iron were formerly produced in a 16-hour working day."

Cadillac men remember when the foundry closed on July 23, 1963. In a gesture of sentiment, the last ladle of metal was used to make a plaque commemorating the event.

"The enormous engineering feat required to dismantle the foundry, design and build an entirely new assembly system took almost three years," Mr. Werner said. "Now for the first time, two separate assembly lines are in operation at Cadillac's main plant."

The entire 170,000 square feet of foundry space is devoted to building the Eldorado. Nearly a mile of conveyors carry the parts that are assembled to become Cadillac's new luxury personal car.

rication system to insure that each bolt is turned to the correct degree of tightness automatically.

Final assembly operations also include a new dynamic tire balancing system which indicates tire balance while the wheel is spinning as if it were in place on a car.

New equipment and attention to detail make the Eldorado paint shop one of the most modern in the country. Even the infrared reflectors are gold-plated to provide the high-quality paint finish that owners expect from Cadillac.

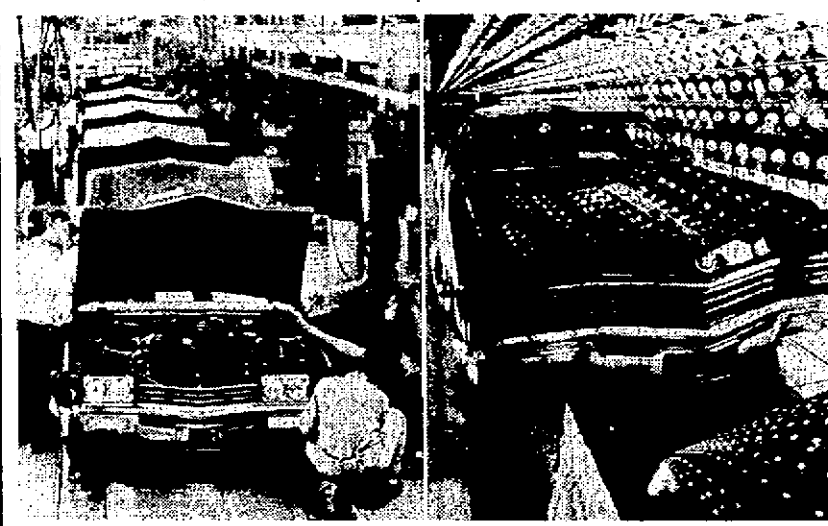

"When production of the Eldorado was announced," Werner said, "many Cadillac men and women who had begun their careers in the foundry asked to be returned to the area where they formerly worked."

And, in the afternoon when the whistle blows, Cadillac craftsmen head home past the aisles of new cars — remembering the rich history surrounding them.

THE COMPLETELY self-contained assembly and painting operations use the most up-to-date tools and equipment available.

A new air system has been installed for powering automated wrenches. It utilizes a compressed air dryer and special centralized lubrication.

Pupil Cites Sex Study Demands

Girl: "Family Life classes, especially the ones where boys and girls attend together, provide for better understanding."

Boy: "The discussion group helped to solve a lot of problems by answering questions that the teacher would not or could not answer."

Boy: "I think these films will stop a lot of questions, crimes and sexual desire . . . This course was very enlightening and should be a major part of our educational program."

Girl: "Youngsters are discussing sex more and more. It is my belief if they are going to discuss sex, they should at least know what they are discussing. If children know what life is about, they are not as apt to discuss it."

Boy: "The Family Life course taught me more about sex than I ever imagined existed. It taught me, that sex could be dangerous even though in a later part of my life it would probably be a must. I never thought that sexual relations could destroy a young person's future life. Therefore I think that a Family Life course should be urged on all teen-agers."

ONLY ONE youngster, a girl, was critical. Her criticism: "The movies they showed were of little value." Reason: "They were out of date."

Anaheim also has a sex-education course for adults, and following are some adult comments:

"This class will help me have a line of communication between my husband and myself, and my children."

"I always thought I was carrying the world on my shoulders. This class has helped me realize that others have problems far more severe than mine."

"The course helped greatly in opening channels of communication between me and my youngster."

"I FEEL THIS class is about 20 years overdue. Wish I had been able to take this course when I attended school."

"I guess what has been most beneficial to me is that during this course I have somehow learned to relax more with my children. I am not so quick to push the panic button."

"I hope this class can be offered again and again, so everyone in the community has a chance to learn how to live with a teen-ager."

I feel more informed and less embarrassed when talking with our children. Also, it seems every family has more or less of the same family life problems."

State Agents Seize Record Pep Tablets

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — State undercover agents Friday seized about 1,090,000 amphetamine tablets (bennies), the largest seizure of dangerous drugs ever made in California, an official reported.

They also arrested Alfonso Villaseñor, 26, a Tijuana bar operator, described as a major supplier. He was arrested on suspicion of selling dangerous drugs when he delivered the pills to a local warehouse from Tijuana.

The drugs, valued at more than $100,000 on the retail market, were purchased by agents of the State Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement for about $6,000, according to Joseph H. House, head of the bureau's San Diego office. He said the money spent by agents was recovered.

Purse, $250 Stolen

Geneva McKeen, 2190 Oceana Ave., told Long Beach police Friday a thief stole her purse containing $250 while she and her husband were dancing at George's Roundup, 2310 W. Pacific Coast Highway.

Youngsters Meet Their Heroes

Policemen seem to attract kids like magnets. Below is a scene that happens in every station house in the country from time to time. Officer G. L. Butler of Torrance tries to get Michael Saenz, 2, to have another sip of a cold drink. Young Michael got tired of home and wandered away in his pajamas. He was a guest of the police until his father, Charles Saenz, of 20711 Eastwood Ave., Torrance, showed up to claim him. At right, Billy Edward Cole, 2, of 1115 St. Louis Ave., feels important mounted on a policeman's motorcycle at "Law Enforcement on Display" at Long Beach Arena. The event, which continues through today, has the purpose of familiarizing the public with police equipment and methods. The program is sponsored by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce and the Long Beach Police Department and under direction of Dr. Robert W. Calhoun, chairman. Participating agencies include the police of Long Beach, Los Angeles and Signal Hill, the sheriff's office, the California Highway Patrol, the United States Border Patrol and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Municipal Jobs Pay Hike Asked

Pay raises and other benefits for Long Beach city employees which could cost $7.5 million annually were proposed Friday by two unions.

Teamsters Local 572, in a letter to the City Council, called for "minimum" wage increases of 8 per cent across-the-board for all city employees.

Long Beach City Employees Local 112, AFSCME, AFL-CIO, asked the councilmen by letter to grant a $35-a-month raise to all city employees.

City officials estimated the Teamsters' proposal would cost $2,597,000 annually if the 8 per cent were granted to all of the approximately 4,000 full-time city employees.

The request of Local 112, official said, would cost an estimated $1,680,000 a year.

The Teamsters' Union also asked the council to extend medical care benefits to families of city employees at no cost to the employee. A somewhat similar proposal on health and welfare was made by Local 112.

City officials estimated the cost of either of the proposals at $1,440,000.

Local 112 also proposed that longevity pay be established for city employees, with $35 per month being added at the end of each five-year period. The plan, city officials said would cost about $3,016,860 a year.

Another proposal of Local 112 is that the city raise its minimum monthly wage to $4.00.

The present minimum for full-time employees, city officials said, is $3.39. If it were increased to $4.00, it would affect 48 persons in the typist-clerk classification and would cost $37,320, they said.

Local 112 further asked that the crew on the 25-yard packers used by the Public Service Department be raised from two to three. Estimated cost of this increase was $264,900 a year.

In its recommendations, Local 112 urged that the percentage increase method on salaries be abandoned in favor of across-the-board raises, arguing that the percentage method continually expands the gap between lower and higher paid employees.

City Manager John R. Mansell is expected to make his recommendations on pay hikes for city employees at the council's June 13 meeting.

ASK $500,000

Cart Death Suit Filed

By BOB SANDERS

A suit against the City of Long Beach asking more than $500,000 in damages for the death of a man who was knocked from a ladder by an electric cart was filed in Superior Court here Friday.

Also named in the suit was the 80-year-old driver of the electric cart, Mrs. Verna Clarke of 725 Cherry Ave.

The suit was filed by Atty. Erik Rose in behalf of the wife, Dorothy, and son, Brian, 19, of Omen C. Quelvog, 51, of 2909 E. Second St.

Quelvog, who had operated an electric sign company here since 1936, was working atop an aluminum ladder in front of 2325 E. Seventh St., on May 14, 1966, when the cart hit the ladder, knocking it down.

Quelvog fell 14 feet to the pavement, fracturing his skull. He died two days later in Community Hospital.

The suit asks $500,000 damages, plus recompense for medical bills of $640, hospital bills of $600, an ambulance bill for $33 and burial expenses of $1,577.

The City of Long Beach is named as a defendant in the suit on the grounds that it failed to enforce the provisions of Section 21603 of the California Vehicle Code.

THE SUIT quotes the Vehicle Code as follows: "No persons shall operate or move a motor vehicle upon a sidewalk except as may be necessary to enter or leave adjacent property."

The suit alleges that by the city's failure to enforce the Vehicle Code by prohibiting electric carts from operating on the sidewalks, it has created a "dangerous and defective" condition.

It also asserts that by failing to ban electric carts from the sidewalks and by having depressions in downtown curbs, the city has encouraged cart drivers to drive on the sidewalks, thereby creating the dangerous condition which resulted in Quelvog's death.

Last month the Long Beach City Council discussed at length the problem of electric carts in the city, of which there are an estimated 700, and ordered City Manager John Mansell to prepare a report on the situation.

The council was told that a September, 1965, amendment to the California Vehicle Code "appears to bar" electric carts from sidewalks.

However, Mansell told the council Long Beach Police Chief William J. McNeely feels that the electric carts may be even more dangerous on the streets than they are on the sidewalks.

Desalt Plant Bill Passes in Committee

From our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO—A bill to allow the state tidelands to be used for the $444-million nuclear power and desalinization plant in Orange County cleared its first committee hurdle Friday.

The Assembly Public Utilities and Corporations Committee gave a do-pass recommendation to the bill by Assemblyman Robert H. Burke, R-Huntington Beach.

There weren't any no votes, though state parks and recreation director William Penn Mott Jr. raised some objections pending settlement of an easement. Metropolitan Water District wants through Bolsa Chica State Beach. The utility and state are dickering over price.

The Burke Bill, paving the way for construction of an offshore man-made island as the site of the facility, now goes to the Assembly Ways and Means Committee for a fiscal check.

Senate OKs Thomas Span Refinancing

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — A unanimous Senate vote Friday gave final legislative passage to a bill authorizing the refinancing of the Vincent Thomas Bridge to pay for $10 million in bridge approaches.

The bridge, spanning the harbor between San Pedro and Terminal Island, is to be linked by an expressway to Pacific Coast Highway.

Meanwhile, the California Toll Bridge Authority called a meeting for next Thursday to consider a final go-ahead on ordering bond financing if Gov. Ronald Reagan signs the bill by then.

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, the author, is hopeful construction will start by autumn if financing is arranged on schedule and a bid-call can be issued Aug. 1.

Make-shift approach roads now serve the $21.4-million Vincent Thomas Bridge.

Travelers to Elect Officers

Three hundred members of the United Commercial Travelers of America and Ladies Auxiliary are holding their 69th Grand Convention at the Edgewater Inn.

Thursday and Friday were devoted to ceremonies, reports and lodge business. There will be election of officers, presentation of awards and banquet today.

Melvin B. Cooper, Fresno, said the UCT "is a fraternal, benevolent and insurance order."

"It was organized by two traveling salesmen in 1884, and for many years was limited to commercial travelers. In recent years it has been open to good citizens generally."

Short Rest From War Now Eternal

He had a bad case of jungle rot.

But it gave him a chance to rest awhile and sleep on a cot with blankets.

On the next day, he would be "back with my boys."

On the next day, he died in action in Vietnam.

He was one of "Five Who Died," a quintet of Long Beach-area servicemen whose story will be told in a five-part series starting Sunday in The Independent Press-Telegram.

The series is written by Bill Duncan, prize-winning reporter

Santa Anan, 20, Dies in Berkeley

Le Roy Bruce, 20, of 13902 N. Harper St., Santa Ana was found dead Friday in a building on the Berkeley campus of the University of California.

The coroner's office said that Bruce apparently died of natural causes but that an autopsy would be held.

Bruce was a junior in architecture.

STURZA CITES OVERWORK

Antipoverty Chief Resigns

By CHARLES SUTTON

Long Beach's antipoverty board launched a hasty if desperate search for a new administrative officer this week following the surprise disclosure that its present director, Harold Sturza, will resign June 9.

Sturza, a former grocery executive and human relations worker, had submitted a letter of resignation effective June 2, but later agreed to stay on an additional week to complete some unfinished business. He started on the job Jan. 3.

Sturza, who said he planned "to get the hell out of town for a Caribbean cruise," said the job had virtually worn him out.

"I'm being worked to death," he complained.

Sturza's resignation had an apparently upsetting effect on some board members, who felt the timing of his departure was unfortunate.

Their concern stemmed from the fact that parts of the county antipoverty program are being transferred to Long Beach under a split-up of the county program at this time, and the absence of a director could possibly endanger the transfers, they feel. (Such programs as Teen Posts and legal aid are being divided among five community action agencies, and Long Beach is scheduled to receive those parts that fall in its jurisdiction.)

STURZA, HOWEVER, said he would effect the transfers before he left.

The 48-year-old administrator praised some of the "fine people" he had worked with, but also hinted that the talents he had brought to the job, as well as the work load he had carried, had not been as fully appreciated as they might have been.

Board members, meanwhile, moved swiftly to fill the opening created by his resignation.

The board has distributed notices throughout the county soliciting applicants (they must have college degrees) with at least three years experience in welfare work, poverty, public administration, business administration or school administration.

The deadline for applications is June 2, and they may be filed at the placement office of California State College at Long Beach, or with the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities and Community Relations.

SLICING 'WORLD'S LARGEST' SHORTCAKE

Ed Olsen (left) and his son Bill Olsen slice "world's largest strawberry shortcake" as festivities opened Friday night at Garden Grove's annual Strawberry Festival. The Olsens have donated the shortcakes for the past four years. Five-day celebration continues with a parade today at 10 a.m.

Citizens Line Up to Help Ailing Diane

By GEORGE LAINE

Seven-year-old Diane Triplett DeSmith doesn't undergo open heart surgery until June 9, but Long Beach area citizens are already showing a soft spot in their hearts for the spunky child; blood and pledges of blood have already been received at the Long Beach Red Cross.

More, an organization designed to aid the child before, during and after the dangerous surgical procedures is already in the formative stages.

"The list of people who are volunteering to give blood is beginning to grow," said Mrs. Barney Esparza, of 1532 W. 31st St. Mrs. Esparza, who went to the De Smith home last Saturday to deliver a teddy bear—it was the item the brown-eyed youngster said she wanted "most"—stayed long enough to volunteer to help the De Smith family coordinate the volunteer aid that has mushroomed since the public first learned of the child's plight.

"We've also received some questions from people who can't give blood but who want to volunteer their services, their time," Mrs. Esparza said. "We're assembling a list of these people and we'll let them know what they can do and when."

The Red Cross reported Friday that Ken McCleery, a Long Beach carpenter, had stopped in and given a pint of blood for the youngsters. McCleery beat the gun; on Monday, the first group of donors—an anticipated dozen—will gather at Red Cross headquarters here to give blood for the stricken child.

Diane, whose heart has major leakages in two of its partitions, will need eight pints of whole blood on the day of the operation. She will, additionally, need more blood on a routine basis following surgery.

"I just read about it in the paper," McCleery explained. "I try to give blood every three or four months and when I saw this girl, needing blood, I figured it was better to give the blood when you can tell where it's going."

Angel Derby Title to Judy Wagner

JUDY WAGNER

Judy Wagner, of Palos Verdes Estates, was declared winner Friday in the 27th annual Montreal-Miami Women's International Air Race.

She took the championship of the event, also known as the Angel Derby by more than six miles over than her nearest competitor, Sophia Payton, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Mrs. Wagner, of 2516 Via La Seva, is a veteran competitor in women's air races and last year placed second in the WIAR.

"We had fantastic tailwinds all the way down," she said of the 1,667-mile flight.

Among other contests, she has won the Reno closed court pylon race, women's stock plane competition in Maryland and has placed second in the west-east transcontinental Powder Puff Derby.

COUNCIL LEADERS

Basic Belief Still Holds, Poll Shows

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Radical theologies, which proclaim the "death" of God and deny the divinity of Christ, have won few adherents among Protestant church leaders in America.

That was the finding of a survey conducted by the research department of the National Council of Churches among delegates to the NCC's General Assembly in Miami Beach last December. The results have just been tabulated.

Two-thirds of the assembly delegates responding to the survey were clergymen.

Adventist's 1st L.B.

Sermon Today

Associate Pastor Albert C. Tilstra, newly appointed to First Seventh-day Adventist Church, 1001 E. Third St., will deliver his first sermon today at 11 a.m.

Mr. Tilstra comes from the Ojai Seventh-day Adventist Church where under his four-year administration the church was built.

The rest were lay leaders active in church affairs. All questionnaires were completed anonymously, to encourage candid answers.

In reply to a question designed to test the strength of their convictions about God, 66 per cent of the delegates chose the statement:

"I know that God really exists and I have no doubts about it."

Most of the rest chose the statement:

"While I have doubts, I feel that I do believe in God."

Less than 1 per cent expressed an agnostic or atheist view.

Another question dealt with what theologians call "Christology"—beliefs about the person and mission of Jesus.

Sixty-three per cent of the delegates affirmed that "Jesus is the divine son of God and I have no doubts about it."

Most of the rest chose to say:

"While I have some doubts, I feel basically that Jesus is divine."

About two per cent said: "I think Jesus was only a man, although an extraordinary one."

On a question about biblical miracles, however, the assembly delegates were sharply divided.

Twenty-five per cent expressed belief that "the miracles actually happened just as the Bible says they did."

Thirty-five per cent said, "I believe the miracles happened but can be explained by natural causes."

Twenty-two per cent said they were "not sure whether these miracles really happened or not."

Four per cent believed that "miracles are stories and never really happened."

The remaining 14 per cent did not answer.

Two-thirds of the delegates said they are certain that "there is a life beyond death."

Most of the rest also affirmed belief in a hereafter but were not willing to claim complete certainty.

Campus Crusade at Arrowhead

This summer at Arrowhead Springs, international headquarters for Campus Crusade for Christ, 10,000 students will be trained as "revolutionaries for Jesus Christ."

Students are being mobilized on over 70 campuses from San Diego to Santa Barbara. Participating locally are Cal State Long Beach, Long Beach City College, Harbor Junior College, Golden West, Cerritos, Fullerton Junior College, Cal State Fullerton, and El Camino.

A campaign at those colleges is under way to recruit students to come to Arrowhead Springs, said Dick Edie, director of CCC at Cal State (L.B.).

Students interested in attending one or more of the conferences are to ask to contact Karen Mahaffie, registrar, at 434-9747.

First Brethren Bounces Back in Its New Setting

By LES RODNEY

It was Saturday night, May 24, 1964, just about three years ago as the time flies.

A series of fires in Long Beach churches had everyone edgy. Grace Methodist, at Third and Junipero, had been damaged the night before.

"I came home from the Grace church about 9:30 p.m.," recalls Dr. Charles W. Mayes, pastor of First Brethren. "I had offered the use of our church at Fifth and Cherry to Stan Brown, the Grace minister, to help them out on Sunday."

It was a neighborly gesture, but there was no First Brethren Church on Sunday.

"I went to bed early," Dr. Mayes said this week in his study in the new First Brethren at 36th and Linden, where only the sanctuary remains to be completed. "Of course we had thoughts—suppose it happened. My wife kept going out on the porch just to look across at the church."

IT WAS about 11:30 p.m. when Mrs. Mayes took another look and saw the fire. By the time Dr. Mayes dressed and ran out, the entire structure was involved, with flames coming through the roof. The arsonist or arsonists had done their foul work well.

"The fire chief told me he didn't know if he could save anything but asked what they should try to salvage. I told him the church records in the office were important. They were able to save most of them."

Little else was left of the church, one of Long Beach's largest with more than 1,000 members. Equipment, furniture, pipe organ, 18 pianos...

"And 450 books," added the soft spoken pastor, who came to First Brethren in 1946 from the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, forerunner of Biola College, where he taught systematic theology, homiletics and other subjects. A native of Sullivan, Ohio (which even many former Ohioans never heard of), he also had edited all the Brethren fellowship's national publications before coming to the Southland.

It was 6 a.m. that bleak Sunday morning when one of the Mayes' two sons suddenly asked: "Dad, where are we going to hold services today?"

There was no question about whether the 51-year-old church would hold services. Just where.

BRETHREN High School in Paramount was the answer, though it was more than nine miles from Fifth and Cherry.

"We went on the radio, got on the phones, and do you know, we had 800 of our people at the high school for the 11 a.m. services," Dr. Mayes smiled. "More than we had the following Sunday."

First Brethren continued to meet at the high school while a building committee was elected and explorations of various possibilities began. A makeshift bus service was organized and did wonders to keep the vigorous Sunday School going, though there was some inevitable attrition.

"It was a sad experience, but thrilling, too," the pastor said softly. "Our people were wonderful."

Four months ago First Brethren moved from the high school to its own newly completed Long Beach facilities, back down five miles toward the original location. While work progresses on the sanctuary, which will accommodate 1,450, services are held for 900 by rolling back mechanical doors between the fellowship hall and gymnasium, two achievements in modern design. A magnificent school setup, in keeping with Brethren emphasis on Christian education, includes 17 spacious, cheerful and utilitarian departments, which can handle 1,500 pupils. (Enrollment is back up to 950.) An acoustically amazing chapel, generous kitchen facilities, administrative offices and library are equally impressive.

And not only are they nice to look at. They're humming. "Scarcely a night that you won't find the social hall and gymnasium in use," said Dr. Mayes.

IT'S EASY enough to sit at a typewriter and hit the keys which spell out the words "phoenix from the ashes" and "happy ending." Getting the big job done was, and is, something else again.

Starting a new church doesn't happen in a hurry. Those smiling pictures of someone stepping on a shovel come after long, long months, more often years, of deliberation, planning, arguing, and winning agreement from all those who must pay the freight.

First Brethren had no prior deliberation, no plans in May, 1964. It did have tradition—over half a century of Christian service, during which it developed

CONFIDENT LIVING

Grove Pastor's Thrilling Story

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Dr. Robert Schuller (pastor of Garden Grove Community Drive-In Church) relates a thrilling, awe-inspiring story about an Iowa tornado. It happened one summer after his first year at college on the family farm which his father had worked for 26 years.

One day there came a curious roaring to the west, like a thousand freight trains rumbling beyond the clouds. Thinking it was a hail storm they placed buckets and wooden boxes over their prize rose bushes. The sky grew very dark. Gusts of hot wind blew dust up from the surface of the road. A horse in the pasture stopped grazing and stood, head high and tail lifted, sensing disaster. A cow called plaintively to her calf.

Then there bulged from the dark clouds a black lump rapidly extending itself into a long funnel with end reaching further and further down to the ground. Mr. Schuller shouted, "Jennie, it's a tornado! Bob, tell your mother to grab anything and run to the car! We've got to get out of here fast!" Minutes later they were racing down the road and they kept going until a good two miles from the path of the twister. There they stopped and watched as the tornado hit the earth with elemental force. In 10 minutes it had lifted and was gone.

RETURNING homeward in the strangely hushed atmosphere, the Schullers passed first a neighbor's place — it was utterly destroyed. In speechless anxiety they came to a little hill — from here they could always see the tip of their barn just beyond. But now, nothing.

Turning into their driveway they beheld the full grisly sight. Not one of the nine, freshly painted buildings remained standing. The house had completely vanished and only its foundation remained. There was a ghastly moaning of dying cattle. The horse lay dead, a 14-foot two-by-four through its body. A sow lay dead in the driveway, suckled by three little pigs, the only living creatures in this desolate scene.

Mr. Schuller sat too stunned to move or speak.

his blue-veined hands gripping the steering wheel of the car. How thin from overwork he looked, snow white of hair. Suddenly he began to pound the wheel, crying, "Jennie, it's all gone! Twenty-six years, Jennie, and it's all gone in 10 minutes!"

Perhaps only those who were farmers back before governmental aid and present-day mechanization can understand the depth of anguish in such an outcry. From my own boyhood days in Ohio I remember vividly the bent backs of old farmers; men who toiled from before dawn to long after dusk, and then on by lantern light; struggling against droughts, grasshoppers and freak snowstorms, scrimping to meet mortgage payments; enduring and hoping through one difficulty to the next.

The Iowa tornado had lifted the Schuller house in one piece and crashed it in a pasture a half-mile away. Getting out of the car and walking there Mr. Schuller found a battered little note to which had hung in their kitchen. It was inscribed: "Keep Looking to Jesus." It seemed to be God's message in this terrible hour, saying not to give up.

MR. SCHULLER was past sixty. The mortgage would be due shortly. Chances of ever owning property free and clear of debt was now very dim.

Some people would have lost their faith. Few would have had courage to try again. Nine farms were destroyed by that tornado. Only Mr. Schuller undertook to rebuild. He commenced replacing little by little the lost livestock and buildings.

Then a few years later farm prices rose sharply. Before long the mortgage was paid off. Bob Schuller's father died the owner of a thriving farm.

There was greatness in this man — a rugged strength. He was a person of strong faith knowing, as the Bible says, that "the Lord is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble; and He knoweth them that trust Him." He was a man of strong will, who would not

REV. BERNARD

New Pastor in South Gate

Rev. Walter M. Bernard is the new pastor of Bible Assembly of God, 10125 California Ave., South Gate.

With Mrs. Bernard, he pastored a church in Bakerville for the past five years, also conducting three weekly gospel broadcasts over area radio. Before coming to California the Bernards pastored in Flint, Mich. for 14 years, also conducted a weekly broadcast there.

The couple has three sons, Gerald G. and David J., pastors in Sacramento and Riverside, and Harold D. of Huntington Beach.

let anything get him down.

He was philosophical. He was a hard worker.

Life is queer with its twists and turns.

As everyone of us sometimes learns,

And many a failure comes about

When he might have won had he stuck it out...

And this poem by an unknown author, concludes:

So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit...

It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit.

Their Cathedrals Are the Streets

THE NIGHT PASTORS. By Stanley G. Matthews. Hawthorn, $4.95.

Here are some excerpts from the work-log of Rev. John G. Gensel, Lutheran pastor in New York:

"Attended a benefit for a musician in the Village Vanguard... Performed a wedding... Had a funeral... Went to the Immigration Department to testify on behalf of a person who wishes to become a citizen... Attended a meeting of Jazz Interactions, a group to help musicians help themselves and to foster the jazz idiom... Went out eleven nights to jazz spots... Held a number of counselling sessions and visited the sick... Held a service with Joe Newman, trumpet, and Roger Kellaway, piano..."

New York's Gensel is one of the 10 young ministers and priests whose stories are told in "Night Pastors," men whose dedicated work is done after dusk, among singers, musicians and dancers, or who live a major portion of their lives in the city streets because no one is too forlorn to earn their ministration — prostitutes, homosexuals, dope addicts, people bent on suicide, the lonely and the lost.

Their "cathedrals," then, are streets, coffeehouses, jazz bistros, strip joints. Here are the 10: the Rev. Mr. Gensel; Rev. William Southwick, "the Doorkeeper of Chicago," a Presbyterian; Episcopalian Rev. Robert H. Owen, "The Night Pastor of Glitter Gulch" in Chicago; San Francisco's Rev. H. Don Guynes and Rev. Donald Stuart of the United Church of Christ; Rev. Richard I. Mawson, United Chaplain of Las Vegas; Methodist Rev. Austin Vick, whose ministry is in the coffeehouses of Denver; Boston's Catholic Rev. Kenneth Murphy, and Newark's "Evangelist of the Lunch Counter," Rev. William Iverson, of the Reformed Church of America.

Author Stanley G. Matthews is himself a minister, of the United Presbyterian Church, as well as an editor and journalist.

With all your heart

"ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart. And I will be found of you, saith the Lord." It's a promise that has never been broken. But it does require all the heart. Christian Science church services are devoted to this kind of searching. You are always welcome.

PULPIT IN GYM UNTIL SANCTUARY IS READY

FIRST BRETHREN BACK

the spiritual resources to become a "mother church" which started seven others in the area, including North Long Beach Brethren at 61st and Orange, now the largest in the denomination, with Long Beach's biggest Sunday School.

It had a good solid congregation — "a cross section of the population," as Dr. Mayes put it. No multi-millionaire angels, but a fair share of substantial citizens, leaders, businessmen, professionals, engineers, firemen ... you name it.

It had a strong sense of its mission. And it had faith.

Since the church had become cramped at the old location in any case, with a two-lane street, inadequate parking and nothing like the elbow room needed for its school and youth activities potential, the decision was to find at least four acres elsewhere. Easier said than done in central Long Beach at anything like a feasible price for a church.

THE 4½ ACRES at 36th Street were acquired for a sum in excess of a half million. Subsequently it was necessary to cap off nine old oil wells, and replace three feet of soil deemed inadequate to build on. The completed buildings have cost roughly $750,000, and the sanctuary will amount to a similar sum, bringing the overall bill to $2 million, without furnishings.

These remarkable accomplishments, including the winning back to old membership levels in the face of dislocation, are attributed by Dr. Mayes to the church's solid foundation over the years, and its strong "conservative, Bible-centered theology." (His own leadership would certainly be added as a factor by members.)

With a congregational form of government, and high emphasis on local autonomy, the church is closest in form and worship to the Baptists, of other Protestants. It belongs to the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, a conservative grouping headquartered in Winona Lake, Ind., with a disproportionately large membership in this area, considering its modest national standing.

If one had to classify First Brethren theologically, Dr. Mayes says, "You could say largely Calvinist. We defend the faith as a settled matter. We feel the ecumenical churches have watered it down."

"They are moving inevitably toward the one large church of prophecy," he continues. "But the church is only an assembly of individual believers, each of whom must have a relationship to the Lord Jesus. We promote the teachings of the Bible."

HOWEVER, he adds, the Brethren do not go around knocking any other Long Beach churches, or the personal motivations of their leaders nor do they proselytize.

Dr. Mayes goes along with the slogan of the National Assn. of Evangelicals

(NAE), to which First Brethren is affiliated: "Cooperation without compromise."

"We're not trying to run anybody down. We have our own business at hand. Actually, we have more people coming to us here than we can get around to contacting."

The Brethren high school, he points out, has young people with no less than 30 different denominational backgrounds.

There is a strong youthful flavor at First Brethren. "Our young people come to church, they are involved," comments the pastor. The church is jealous too of the old Sunday night worship tradition, dropped by many others. "We've been averaging about 400."

A lot of work remains on the sanctuary. It will be a big day sometime in October when it is dedicated — another chapter in the classic Christian paradox in which triumph grows out of defeat.

Bishop Sheen Gets Rid of 'Chancery'

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The Chancery Office of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Rochester has been renamed "The Pastoral Office" in a move Bishop Fulton J. Sheen says reflects the "person-oriented atmosphere" called for by the late Pope John XXIII.

"The Pastoral Office," Bishop Sheen said Monday, will express the "charity, openness and the oneness of the priesthood and laity."

"To make the move to equity, as opposed to law; to a person-oriented atmosphere, as opposed to a judicial-oriented one, it has been decided to use a name more in keeping with the pastoral spirit," he explained.

"The word 'chancery,' the prelate stated, "often has been associated with bureaucracy, officialdom and curial procedure."

Speaking of Those Teen-Agers...

There are teen-agers and teen-agers, and perhaps generalizations are sometimes unfair.

Anyhow, this particular Long Beach lad might be worth our notice. He's neat and polite, serves as an usher at First Lutheran Church — AND he's an athlete, a leader, and topnotch student. That too is an American teen-ager.

Most of the faculty and students at Lutheran High School in Los Angeles, call him Steve. His cumulative records, featuring a 3.74 grade point average, are filed under Heinsohn. While in session, Student Council members address him as Mr. Chairman. In the football programs he was No. 12, quarterback, 5'10", 172 lbs.

Recently this modest 17-year-old senior was elected a member of the Student Advisory Board on Education, an honor shared with only 32 members of the California Association of Student Councils. Locally Steve was one of three delegates chosen from District 19, whose 51 membership schools make it the largest district in the state.

The elected representatives met in Chatsworth to adopt proposals on education which would be submitted to the State Board of Education. For three days the delegates debated and discussed numerous proposals. Their final proposals were submitted to Max Rafferty in a ceremony that received television coverage.

Steve's desire for excellence was partially responsible for his selection as a delegate. When District 19 met in January to choose its representatives, Steve was only a listening participant. Unimpressed, almost discouraged, by some of the speeches he heard, he asked at the last moment if it would be possible to enter as a late candidate. Permission was granted, and Steve was soon engaged in "one of the most thrilling experiences of my life."

On one other occasion young Heinsohn's public speaking ability earned him recognition. An American Legion Post asked 19 schools to send a student representative to their special meeting. After hearing each of the boys speak, the Post selected one as its delegate to Boy's State. Steve has fond memories of Boy's State 1966.

In addition to serving an unprecedented two years as Student Council president, Steve has performed well in other areas. He has been a member of the National Honor Society and the California Scholarship Federation all four years. His activity periods have been devoted primarily to Key Club, a service club sponsored by the Kiwanis Clubs, but he has also participated in the German and Sketch Clubs. In sports he has played freshman football, junior varsity football and basketball, and varsity football for two years. Presently he is cast as the hero in the school play, "Caught in the 'Villain's Web.' In May he will receive Lutheran's "Outstanding Student" award.

Perhaps it is fitting for one who seems capable of setting many "fires" — his father, Robert Heinsohn is completing his twenty-second year with the Long Beach Fire Department, and his brother Tom, 24, is employed by the Santa Ana Fire Department. The third son, Robert, 25, is skipper of a Long Beach Life Guard Patrol boat. Mrs. Jeanne Heinsohn is content with her mother's role at 650 Coronado Ave.

Steve plans to attend UC at Santa Barbara, for 2 years of pre-dentistry and hopes to complete his work at either USC or UCLA. "I've always wanted to be a dentist," he says.

The Heinsohns all are members of First Lutheran at Atlantic and 9th, where Steve attended elementary school.

BRIEFLY...

Scot Not Ecumenical! Church Housing at Expo

The ecumenical spirit isn't doing too well in Scotland, where Presbyterians are historically suspicious of the designs of the Anglicans — a situation in which a touch of nationalism undoubtedly enters the picture.

A leading Scots theologian, Ian Henderson, professor of systematic theology at Glasgow University and moderator of the Glasgow Presbytery, charges in a new book that Anglicans and their ecumenical fellow travelers are engaged in a move to take over the Presbyterian Church of Scotland.

The title of the book is "Power Without Glory." It is dedicated to "the good Christians in every denomination who do not really care whether there is one church or not."

From where he sits, Henderson sees the ecumenical movement as a kind of ecclesiastical power game in which Presbyterians will be among the losers. "The idea of one church," he says, "so far from providing a goal which all Christians are obliged to seek after, is in fact probably the worst idea which has ever influenced the minds of men."

"No one in his senses can fail to rejoice in the thaw between Catholicism and Protestantism. If that were all there was to the ecumenical movement then there would be no place for criticism of it. But there is more."

Prof. Henderson accuses the World Council of Churches of being less than candid about "the facts of politics and the realities of power within itself and all great ecclesiastical concentrations," and says it must stand "under the suspicion of pandering to the lust for power which is only satisfied with that unity we call monopoly."

READER MRS. C. L. of Long Beach thinks there was something missing in last week's quote here by a Michigan University professor: "The need to improve social institutions is far more critical than inventing new weapons, faster computers, supersonic transports or any other form of technological hardware." She says: "Agreed, but don't forget an even more important element — the need to improve the individual human being."

CHURCH GROUP heading from Long Beach to Expo 67 in Montreal? If you run into accommodation problems, or even if you don't, you might like to know that to date four Montreal area churches are offering help. One has turned its education building into a hostel with cots for 60 persons, with suggested donation of $3 a night. Another adds the use of its halls and kitchen to groups under supervision. Two others have thrown open facilities for those who bring their own sleeping bags. Information for reservations can be obtained here on request. Also, the Montreal Presbytery office has a limited supply of family accommodations in church members' homes.

CONGRATULATIONS to the chancel choir of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, 370 Junipero Ave., and minister of music Wallace R. Herrewig, who have produced a fine high fidelity album, with 16 religious anthems and classical works, including "Trust in the Lord," "Hallelujah Chorus" from the Messiah, "O Sacred Head" and selections from DuBois' "Seven Last Words of Christ." It is professionally recorded, with the church's recently installed Reuter Pipe Organ enhancing the result, and is available at the church for a donation.

VISITING Professor in New Testament during the 1967-68 spring semester at Union Theological Seminary (Protestant) will be Rev. Raymond E. Brown, S.S., a Roman Catholic scholar.

NEW CONFESSION LOSES MINISTER

SEATTLE (AP) — Rev. W. Lyall Dettlor, associate pastor of First Presbyterian Church here, said he is leaving the United Presbyterian Church because of its adoption this week of a new confessional statement.

Rev. Dettlor said he believed he was the first minister to declare he was leaving the church because of the creed. The clergyman said his main disagreement with the new creed adopted in Portland, was the revision of two ordination questions that must be asked of newly elected elders.

Sudden Heat Wave Adds Fire to Indy Controversy Over Jones' Turbine Car

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — A sudden heat wave added fire Friday to the controversy over Parnelli Jones' STP-Pratt & Whitney turbine car in final shakedown runs for the 51st 500-mile auto race Tuesday.

Several drivers complained the shimmering waves of heat from the car, which they hadn't noticed in uncommonly chilly weather earlier, definitely bothered them Friday. Temperatures, which had been in the 60s, jumped to 82.

"Within three laps I was spitting cotton," said Joe Leonard of San Jose, who was running behind Jones in a Coyote Ford.

Chief steward Harlan Fengler told Andy Granatelli, president of Studebaker's Corporation's STP division, to put a deflector on the turbine exhaust vent to throw the stream of heated air above following cars.

Jones didn't help the situation by swooshing past other cars, apparently at will, on the short chutes coming out of the front and back mainstretches. The four-wheel-drive turbine car has four 12.10 by 16-inch tires, each having about a 10-inch-wide "footprint" on the track and giving tremendous traction.

Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., fastest qualifier at a record 168.982 miles per hour, repeated an earlier prediction that Jones would be sure of his second 500 victory if the turbine does not develop mechanical troubles.

No car ever has made a lap at 160 mph in the race proper, but everybody Friday was making carburetion, chassis adjustment and fuel consumption tests at that speed or faster.

Dan Gurney was running at 163.3 in his Eagle Ford, Andretti and A. J. Foyt 162.7 and Jones was doing more than 163. Jones had done more than 165 earlier with a full load of fuel.

Track officials gave drivers and crew chiefs an unprecedented private briefing early Friday on rules and the starting procedure. It was an evident attempt to avoid a catastrophe such as the pileup that took 11 cars out of last year's race only a few yards from the starting line.

Jones, Andretti and several other Speedway drivers will compete today in the Yankee 300 stock car race, a U.S. Auto Club event, at Indianapolis Raceway Park, about five miles from the big track. They were committed when the event was rained out May 7.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Kathy Harter of Seal Beach and Tony Fretz of Los Angeles led a strong American women's contingent into the third round of the French International Tennis Championships Friday.

Of the seven U.S. women who played, four won. Four others, including top-seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, play today.

In the men's division, Roy Emerson and Tony Roche of Australia won easily. The top-seeded Emerson was patchy and erratic in beating Ivo Molana, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1, while Roche edged Takeshi Koura of Japan, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2. Miss Harter defeated Ingrid Lodahl of Sweden, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

CLUB owners in the NFL increased their contributions to the players' pension fund to $1.2 million for the next three years. The new amount is an increase of $200,000 over the past few years.

VILLANOVA qualified seven and gained a huge edge Friday in his bid to dethrone Maryland for the IC4A track and field title.

Maryland also qualified seven and in addition qualified its relay team, but surprising Army qualified 10 for today's finals.

Bob Ziemiński of Georgetown turned in the fastest 880 qualifying time with a 1:50.4 clocking. Villanova's mile relay team posted the fastest qualifying time with 3:12, followed by Yale's 3:13.

Other qualifying leaders were Bob Narcesson of Rhode Island with 1:55.9 in the 800; Bill Beller of Seton Hall with 1:55 in the 800; Don Kay of Rutgers with 24-feet-1/4; Frank Haggerty of Harvard whose 52.3 was fastest in the 440 hurdles; and Warren Rockwell of Penn State whose 48-feet-11 1/2 led the triple jump.

THE fifth world basketball championships get under way today with the U.S. and Russia tabbed as the pre-tourney favorites at Montevideo, Uruguay.

The team from the U.S. will be composed of two collegians, Al Tucker of Oklahoma Baptist and Charles Paulk of Northeast Oklahoma St., and former college stars Stan McKenzie of NYU and Mike Silliman of Army along with AAU players — Jay Miller, Vern Benson, Darel Carrier, Kendall Rhine and Jim Williams.

THEY haven't exactly been breaking down any gates to see those soccer games.

According to latest count, average attendance at NSPSL games has been 6,400 and a figure like that can hardly cause anyone to think the sport has taken this country by storm.

FRESNO State exploded for four runs in the ninth inning and defeated Stanford, ranked No. 1 nationally in collegiate baseball, 7-3 in the opener of the District 8 NCAA title.

Don Rose replaced Sandy Vance in the eighth and was shelved for the loss. Fresno pitcher Larry Gonzales settled down after a shaky first inning to pick up the victory.

Elite of Trackdom Take Their Marks in Modesto Relays

By GARY RAUSCH Staff Writer

MODESTO — Cal track coach Sam Bell has called the California Relays the top meet in the world outside the Olympics.

Not only does tonight's 26th edition boast a flock of world class performers and teams but the annual State JC Championships.

Tommie Smith takes a crack at his own world record for 220 yards while San Jose State teammate Lee Evans, who clocked 45.3 behind Smith's world 440 record 44.8 a week ago, has set his sights on that pending standard.

Southern U. won three relays and smashed every existing record for the 440 baton chase a year ago but faces a stiff challenge from the Smith-led Spartans, Texas Southern, Rice, UCLA, the Striders and Abilene Christian.

Oregon, with three sub-four minute milers in Roscoe Divine (3:59), Arne Kuehlheim (3:59.4) and Wade Bell (3:59.6) plus 4:01.8 Dave Wilborn, will gun for the world four-mile mark of 16:08.

In the JC finale, Hancock defends its title with Fullerton and L.A. City in hot pursuit. The Bulldogs won it last season with only three men but return with a 16-man contingent.

Neill Duggan, Hancock's 26-year-old British import, will try and duplicate his sensational triple in the 880, mile and two-mile but faces much stiffer challenges this time.

Floyd Will Visit Troops After Fight

Floyd Patterson, who had been scheduled to fight Cassius Clay before the heavyweight champion got into litigation about his draft status, said Friday he plans to visit American troops in Vietnam next month.

Patterson, training for his June 9 Coliseum fight against Tony Quarry, declined to comment on Clay's battle to avoid the draft.

"I prefer not to remark about that if you don't mind," said the ex-heavyweight king. "I have my personal feelings about it."

Patterson said he was somewhat disappointed because the Clay fight fell through, but added, "there is a slim possibility it could be held depending on the outcome of Clay's trial."

In connection with his Vietnam trip, Patterson said, "I wanted to go over there and box for the troops, but they tell me I will only be able to talk with the fellows and shake hands—that sort of thing."

The former heavyweight champ said at the age of 32 he had no thought of retiring. He admitted that the idea of getting another crack at Clay was part of his motive in refusing to quit the ring.

But he added, "I have a deep feeling about boxing. Boxing is a part of me and I'm a part of boxing. I love everything about boxing. I like training and I like the smell of the gym. It's like a woman — if you love her you're going to keep her as long as you can."

"Until I think I've had it, I'm going to keep on boxing," he said.

Patterson and Quarry appeared together at a press luncheon at the Hacienda International Hotel in El Segundo and took part in perhaps the politest exchange on record between two ring opponents.

Quarry, who is only 22 and has a 20-1-3 record, set the tone by referring to his distinguished foe as "Mr. Patterson."

Patterson then addressed a few remarks to the lunch-crowd of sportswriters, fight managers in a tone which would have benefited a bank president.

He said: "It's going to be a privilege to fight Mr. Quarry. It's going to be an honest fight and a very hard and interesting bout. I will give the best of myself and because of his sincerity I'm sure Mr. Quarry will give the best of himself."

Stokes to Spar at Seaside Gym

Jerry Stokes, who fights Mexico's Lupe Gonzalez in the main event of the pro boxing card at Municipal Auditorium Wednesday night, will work out at the Seaside Gym today and Sunday starting at noon.

Heavyweight Scrap Iron Johnson, Stokes' stablemate, also will work out at the Long Beach gym, which is on Seaside Blvd. directly across from the L.B. Arena.

Johnson is scheduled to spar with Long Beach's Bobby Francis, former all-Marine light-heavyweight champion, who will make his pro debut Wednesday night.

Races at San Gabriel

Winner of two main events the past month, Lee Robinson of Spring Valley rules as pre-race favorite tonight when the CRA Indy-type big cars return to San Gabriel Speedway in Irwindale. Races on the banked-and-paved half-mile oval start 8 p.m. after trials at 7.

OAKLAND (UPI) — John Polonchek, a former assistant coach at Michigan State and Colorado and a pro scout in the AFL for several seasons, has been signed as an assistant coach by the Oakland Raiders.

Spacious grounds, 5 pools, shady trees, separate play yards, small pets welcome.
